SHOPPER PREFERENCE REPORT

The shopping experiences consumers expect in 2024

FRANCE EDITION
Understanding what motivates French consumers to purchase is crucial for any brand or marketer, as these consumers have unique shopping behaviors.

Unlike people in other countries, the French love the in-person shopping experience at brick-and-mortar stores. But get this— even though they dig the physical stores, they still want integrated online/offline retail action, too.

This information comes from Bazaarvoice’s survey of over 1,017 French shoppers, with at least 411 participants in the 18-44 age range. The report compares these trends on a global scale to provide a clearer perspective on consumer behavior.

For instance, French consumers are strongly interested in high-quality, informative product videos produced by brands. Additionally, combining user-generated content with tutorial videos from real people is highly effective. Another interesting fact about French shoppers is that they are surprisingly receptive to store-brand products compared to consumers in other countries.

Use these insights in the report to successfully navigate the French consumer market.
Online and in-store dynamics

While the return to office seems more prevalent, there needs to be a clear consensus on whether this has shifted spending patterns back towards physical retail stores versus online shopping. Consumers are roughly equally divided on whether their return to the office has increased their spending at physical stores rather than online shopping.

Have you returned to a physical office for a percentage of your work week in 2023?

Yes 64.9%  No 35.1%

Recap.

For French shoppers, the modern phrase “Old school, new rules” applies aptly. They are throwing it back to the good old days, preferring to hit up brick-and-mortar stores. But don’t think they’re stuck in the past—these savvy consumers demand a seamless shopping experience across all platforms.

DELIVER AN OMNICHANNEL SHOPPING EXPERIENCE:
What determines the loyalty of a French shopper is the brand’s ability to give them a smooth shopping experience across all channels, from in-store to online.

ENGAGE WITH VIDEO CONTENT:
With a strong preference for videos over still images, shoppers love to engage with brand videos, those created by consumers who have already used the product, or those that educate about using the product.

GREAT SCOPE FOR PRIVATE-LABEL BRANDS:
Private-label brands are gaining traction with French shoppers, with many making a permanent switch over the last six months. This trend presents a significant opportunity for brands to tap into this market.
